[CONTINUED.] In a week she had "a girl" of her own—a plump, overgrown, awkward sort of body, named Belinda, of whom she stood rather less in awe than of the trim predecessor. She resolved to commence with fresh energy and dignity under the new dynasty. The girl seemed crusty at times, to be sure, and sometimes answered her in a way that was at variance with But she had made up her mind her feelings. to endure all that was endurable in this depart-

"Give me my strong coffee in the morning and my fresh meat for dinner, Emily," her husband had said to her the first day, "and will never interfere with your cooking opera tions.

One morning, he set his cup back into it saucer, after tasting it, with a force that nearly cracked it.

"What do you call this?" he demanded. "Isn't it good coffee?" asked Emily, depre catingly.

"It's dish-water!" he exclaimed; I can't write sermons on that! You must talk to Belinda.

The "talking," into which Emily threw good deal of severity, rather irritated Belinda, and she turned away, muttering, that "if she didn't suit folks, they might suit themselves." A few mornings later, tea came on the table in place of coffee—an unheard-of innovation in the pastor's system of dietetics. Emily went from the table into the kitchen, quite angry.

"Why didn't you make coffee this morning,

"Hadn't none, ma'am," answered Belinda bluntly.

"Why didn't you get it, then? Haven't I ordered you always to have coffee for Mr. Young's breakfast?" No answer.

"I would have you to know that I am accustomed to be obeyed by servants!"

Belinda's arms flew up from the dough she was kneading at this word, and all the color in her plump body flew into her cheeks and forehead, if one might judge by appearances. "And I'd have you to know, ma'am, that I aint nobody's servant nor slave! leastways your'n! I've spoke it, and I wont take back! You and I don't suit, nohow, and you may get somebody you can suit! Thank fortun', I've no 'casion to go out to sarvice!"

Emily was thunderstruck by this bolt of She had presence of mind enough to say nothing, however, but walked back into the breakfast-room, where she burst into a fit of crying that frightened her husband. He sprang from his chair to ask her the cause ; but before she had half finished sobbing out her narrative, he stalked into the kitchen his eyebrows in a knot, and simply and sternly ordered the culprit to leave the house!

"Sartin, sir, I'm going"-Belinda began but the lightning in his glance shivered the rest of the sentence on her iips. She dropped her head, and walked off.

"It is more my fault than yours, Emily, said Mr. Young, trying to comfort his still sobbing wife. "I ought to have told you that Northern girls will not bear the name of ser-

"But she is my servant," said Emily, indignantly. "She bound herself to serve me, for so much: whatelse should I call her?" "Well, they make a distinction. The fact is-hem -you know negroes are called servants among your people; and our free-born independent Yankees will not even seem to take rank with-slaves." "If they were half as good," exclaimed Emily, "they might set up above them as they do.

Free, indeed! and it is the mistress who is to be the slave here!" She quivered again with a passion of sobs.

No, Emily. My first-I-that is, in our family, we have never had any trouble with them, and have always lived comfortably and happily. It is all in management. Never fear! you will soon learn our Yankee ways! Don't you think you could get a few hints from Mrs.

Johnson or Mrs. Ray on the subject?"
Mr. Young asked this in the simplicity of his heart. Emily, whose womanly tact on that point was quicker than his judgment, stopped weeping, and lifted her eyes to his to see whether he was really in earnest. Then brushing back the long, light, dishevelled locks from her temples with both hands, she stood up, and said, in the pride of a princess—
"I hope my husband does not think I am quite ignorant enough to be taught by my parishioners!

"No, no, Emmy," said he, caressing her, "you know what I meant But you are right, as you always are! I see how it would work! You shall take nobody's advice but your own. Cheer up, my bird!"

[TO BE CONTINUED.] Heaven.

Heaven is a reality, not seen by the eyes of flesh, but made known by revelation, and re-ceived by faith. Heaven is a rest from toil, trouble, temptation, and sin. Such a rest is very desirable, if it were only a sweet sleep; but Heaven is more.

It is a state of delightful activity. Every faculty and every affection will find appropriate exercise; and probably latent powers, not here known, will there be awakened into activity-powers suited to the new condition in which the soul exists.

Heaven is full of light; all darkness and doubt are absent. Knowledge will there be clear, and will possess a transforming efficacy; still, knowledge in Heaven will be progressive; the pleasure will partly consist in ever learning something unknown before.

Heaven is a region of perfect love; all the heart, and mind, and strength, will be exerted in loving; and if the power of loving should, in the progress of the immortal soul, be increased a thousand fold, all this increased ability will be kept constantly in full stretch by the loveliness and glory of the objects of affection.

Christ is the centre of attraction in Heaven. From him radiate the rays of divine glory, which enlighten, attract, and beautify, all the innumerable host of worshippers. He who the character of the person beloved, the sweeter the sense of his favor. Heavenly joy consists in loving with all the heart, and in being loved. As Heaven is a society, the members are happy, not only in loving their King, but in mutual pure love exists in every breast.

Heaven is a place of peace—sweet peace and uninterrupted harmony: all disturbing elements will be left behind. In the symbolical heavens, or the Revelations, we read of wars; but in the Heaven where saints and angels dwell and worship, war can have no place. The atmosphere is exempt from all malar is purity itself; all sin and iniquity are denied admission into that holy place.

Heaven is a place of song: high affections are expressed in celestial music. Oh! how elevating, how delightful the melodies. Heaven is an unchanging state; for all change is advancement in knowledge, in dignity, in happiness.—Rev. Dr. Alexander.

THE WHIG PLATFORM.

The Whigs of the United States, in Convention assembled, firmly adhering to the great conserva-tive republican principles by which they are controlled and governed, and now, as ever, relying upon the intelligence of the American people, with an abiding confidence in their capacity for self-government and their continued devotion to the Union, do proclaim the folowing as the political sentiments and determina tions for the establishment and maintenance of which their national organization as a party effected:

1. The government of the United States is of a limited character, and it is confined to the ex-ercise of powers expressly granted by the constitution, and such as may be necessary and proper for carrying the granted powers into full execu-tion; and that all powers not thus granted or ecessarily implied are expressly reserved to the States, respectively, and to the people.

2. The State governments should be held se cure in their reserved rights, and the general government sustained in its constitutional powers and the Union should be revered and watched over as "the palladium of our liberties."

3. That, while struggling freedom everywhere enlists the warmest sympathy of the Whig party, we still adhere to the doctrines of the Father o his Country, as announced in his Farewell Address, of keeping ourselves free from all entangling alliances with foreign countries, and of never quitting our own to stand upon foreign ground. That our mission as a republic is not to propagate our opinions, or impose on other coun-tries our form of government by artifice or force, but to teach by example, and show, by our success, moderation, and justice, the blessings of self-government and the advantages of free in-

4. That where the people make and control the government, they should obey its constitution, laws, and treaties, as they would retain their selfespect and the respect which they claim and will enforce from foreign powers.

5. Government should be conducted upon principles of the strictest economy, and revenue sufficient for the expenses thereof, in time of peace, ought to be mainly derived from a duty on im ports, and not from direct taxes; and in levying such duties, sound policy requires a just discrimi ation, and protection from fraud by specific duties when practicable, whereby suitable encouragement may be assured to American industry, equally to all classes and to all portions of the country.

6. The constitution vests in Congress the power to open and repair harbors, and remove obstruc-tions from navigable rivers; and it is expedient that Congress should exercise that power, when ever such improvements are necessary for the common defence, or for the protection and facility of ommerce with foreign nations or among States; such improvements being, in every in-stance, national and general in their character.

7. The federal and State governments are parts of one system, alike necessary for the common prosperity, peace, and security, and ought to be regarded alike with a cordial, habitual, and immovable attachment. Respect for the author ity of each, and acquiescence in the constitu tional measures of each, are duties required by the plainest considerations of national, of State, and of individual welfare.

8. The series of acts of the 31st Congress com nonly known as the Compromise or Adjustment (the act for the recovery of fugitives from labor included) are received and acquiesced in by the Whigs of the United States as a final settlement in principle and substance, of the subjects to which they relate; and, so far as these acts are concerned, we will maintain them, and insist on their strict enforcement, until time and exerience shall demonstrate the necessity of furher legislation, to guard against the evasion of the laws on the one hand, and the abuse of their powers on the other-not impairing their present efficiency to carry out the requirements of the constitution; and we deprecate all further agitation of the questions thus settled, as dangerous to our peace, and will discountenance all efforts to continue or renew such agitation, whenever. wherever, or however made; and we will main-tain this settlement as essential to the nationality of the Whig party and the integrity of the Union

These questions have been thus answered: At the age of twenty-one, and in the summe of 1807, he volunteered into a troop of Virginia In 1812 he fought the battle of Queenstow

In 1813 he was the instrument of saving ou Irish citizens, taken in arms against the British, from the savage penalties of the English law of constructive treason. In the same year he fought, as Colonel, in the battle of Fort George.

In 1814 he made a new army and restored the military spirit of the country-took Fort Eriefought the battle of Chippewa-and fought the good fight of Lundy's Lane.

In 1832 he won the proud title of the "Hero of Humanity," by nursing the sick and dying troops of his army, upon which the Asiatic cholera fell blightingly, on its march to the field of the Black Hawk war. In the same year, by negotiation, and not by force of arms, he brought the Black Hawk war to a just and favorable issue. In the same year he soothed the spirit of Southern Nullification, and saved our country from civil discord. In 1886 he served against the Seminole Indians in Florida.

In 1837, with admirable energy and tact, and without troops, he calmed the patriot disturbances upon our extended Northern frontier.

In the same year he effected the removal of the Cherokees, in a manner that won the gratitude of the noble tribe and the admiration of his whole country.

In 1839 he earned the distinguished title of 'The Pacificator of the Northeastern Boundary,' and saved his country from a bloody and wasteful war with Great Britain.

In 1847 he opened the splendid military drama of the second conquest of Mexico, by reducing the city of Vera Cruz and the impregnable Castle of San Juan d'Ulloa after an active siege of but four days. April the 8th, he fought and won the admirable battle of Cerro Gordo, and opened to the Americans the path to the dominion of the entire Western Continent. On the 19th of April he entered the city of Franklin Pierce was born in 1804, at Hillsbor ough, N. H., and graduated at Bowdein College, Maine-studied law, and commenced practice in Hillsborough county. He was elected to the legislature of his State, and shortly after chosen speaker of the House.

In 1834 he was elected to the lower House of Congress, in which body he served until 1838, at which period he became a Senator of the United States, and served till 1842-3. He resigned his seat in the Senate and returned to the practice of law in 1843. In 1845 he was nominated for governor of the State, but declined. President Polk offered him the Attorney Generalship, which he also declined. In 1848 he was appointed a Colonel in the ten egiments raised for the service of the United States in Mexico. Subsequently, he was made Brigadier General. He performed no achievement of note during the war, nor has he eve done so in any position, civil or military.

Protection from Lightning.

THE undersigned, being the duly appointed agent of Sprat's Electrone, Osvington, Kentucky, begs to offer these superior Rods, of Spiral-twisted, Carbonized Annealed Iron, with Zine Protectors, and Electro-positive elements combined in their manufacture; thus rendering them equal to copper as conductors. They are in ten-feet lengths, with accurately-fitted brass-screw connecting joints, an entire new style of metallic (patented) attachments, for brick or frame buildings; also, glass isolaters, of a novel and ingenious construction, (patented,) forming a lock; the whole mounted with a solid platinum silver point, (patented,) twelve inches long, surrounded at the base with three angular negative magnets, which possess the power, to an extraordinary extent, of discharging the opposite elements of the most fearful thunderstorm, and embrace the entire perfection of science up to the present time; the whole constituting the most magnificent and perfect silent conductor ever presented to the public.

Safety has not been compromised by affording these excellent rods at such low rates; the greatest attention has been given to their construction, so as to be readily attached. The astonishing power of the negative magnets, in discharging the sir of its opposite elements, has been clearly demonstrated by the Electrometer, when tunmagnetized points have shown but slight results, though placed under the same conditions. In fact, they gather and silently discharge electricity from the atmosphere when you would scarcely suspect any being present.

These improvements being secured by double letters patent, you are hereby cautioned against laying yourselves liable, by purchasing of those who are not authorised, or who are substituting inferior initiations. All agents duly appointed can show their certificates. Have good rods or none.

CHARLES W. HEYDON,
Washington City.

I do hereby certify that I have app lied various powerful chemical re-agents to Spratt's Patent Points for Lightning-Rods, and that the results of these experiments convince me that they will resist the action of atmospheric causes, and that they will resist the action of atmospheric causes, and thereby preserve the extremity sharp—a condition most essential to protection against lightning. The research used in the above experiments were a solution of chloride of sodium, (common salt,) acetic acid, sulphuric acid, and hydrochloric acid. With the first, there was no action on the metal; with the several acids, there was very slight—a fact sufficient to show that atmospheric influences would have no sensible effect.

Lexington, Kv., February 20, 1850.

Chicago, September 3, 1850.

This may certify that I have examined, somewhat critically, James Spratt's Patent Lightning Rods, and that I am of opinion that it is constructed on scientific principles. For combining durability, cheapness, and efficacy, I deem it equal, and I think superior, to any other rod ever offered for my inspection.

Applied (34) November 11, 1850.

Prof. JAS. V. Z. BLANEY.

AUGUSTA, (GA.) November 11, 1850.

This will certify that I have examined the Lightning Rods, Metallic Points, and Isolating Attachments, manufactured by Mr. Spratt, and regard them as constructed in conformity to the general laws of the electric fluid; and the metallic compound constituting the Points, as promising, from the result of several tests to which they were submitted, to resist for years the action of those atmospheric causes most likely to corrode them. most likely to corrode them.

Prof. Phys. Sc., Emory College, Ga., and Prof. Chem. and Pharm., Medical College, Ga.

Pharm., Medical College, Ga.

The Lightning Conductors put up by Mr. Henry M. Smith, of this city, on the plan of Mr. Spratt, appear to me to be very well devised; and, in point of mechanical construction, are the best 1 have ever seen.

It is to be hoped that the use of these Rods may become general, as an important auxiliary defence against a danger which must be regarded as of no ordinary magnitude, to which all buildings are liable.
